Reach for the hero inside yourself

Sitting in my box of visual aids is a Spiderman. Every kid knows his super powers and, thanks to Hollywood, what he looks like. Today All Saints Sunday we celebrate all those super heroes of the faith not named in our church calendar. In the New Testament the saints are simply the followers of Jesus, you and me. And as followers of Jesus we are each given super powers. Some of us are super compassionate. We feel and see other people's pain very quickly. Others of us have the gift of music, we can sing or play an instrument or even write music. Some of us have the super power of administration. We can get lots of things done quickly. Some are artistic, practical or good with money or other languages ~ You get the idea. God has given us each super powers with which to serve God.

The trap most of us fall into is either believing we don't have a super power from God. Or, more importantly, that we don't need to use it.

Together we make up the face of Christ to the community. By working together we complement each other and show Christ to the world.

~ Nick

The staff team enjoyed a great time together on Friday night as they participated in the MCC Trust Hui. This is a team building time run by the Head teachers in the Trust. The team enjoyed shared food, fun and fellowship for a few hours and cherished the opportunity for uninterrupted conversations with each other. The theme of this Hui was 'Fill your cup', so each person was able to engage in either a library, a games room or prayer room for as long as they needed to 'fill their cup'. This year the trust hui have focused on re-establishing our practice after the disruptions of COVID19.
